

Lauren A. Geis

252-474-4433 | GEISL1808@gmail.com | LinkedIn Profile | Raleigh, North Carolina

I'm a driven systems and business analyst who thrives on solving everyday problems with creative, efficient solutions. My passion lies in making organizations run smoother by leveraging the right technologies, simplifying processes, and helping people work smarter—not harder.

With hands-on experience managing large-scale documentation systems, streamlining cross-functional workflows, and developing intuitive data solutions, I've built a career around transforming complexity into clarity. Whether it's building out automation tools, optimizing internal processes, or aligning business goals with technical execution, I approach every challenge with curiosity, precision, and a collaborative mindset.

This portfolio showcases work that reflects my growth as a professional and highlights how I've applied core principles of business communication, technology integration, and leadership. Each project included here represents a different skill set—from technical writing and systems analysis to visual reporting and user-focused process design.

My goal is to bring value to any team I join—not only by solving problems, but by helping to identify them before they start. I believe in the power of listening, asking thoughtful questions, and being just as committed to people as I am to systems.

I hope this site gives you a sense of who I am, how I work, and the impact I strive to make.

Thank you for your time, and welcome to Insights by Geis.

Sincerely,

Lauren A. Geis